

I know how exhausting it can feel some days just to check the news or scroll through social media.

The headlines aren't just noise; they're decisions that are impacting our neighbors and families right here in IL-15. And too often, those decisions come with real, painful consequences backed by Mary Miller's votes, every single time.

One of the most devastating examples? Medicaid.

These cuts aren't just numbers on a page.

They're the difference between getting care, or going without.

Between keeping a rural hospital open and a mother driving an hour in an emergency.

And through it all, our current voice in Congress has been silent. Silent while essential services are stripped away from the people who need them most.

But here's what gives me hope: you.

Every time you give, show up, talk to your neighbors, or share a post, you're part of something bigger. You're building a movement to make things better.

I'm not a politician. I'm a neighbor, a nurse, a mom, the daughter of a veteran, and someone who believes every one of us in this district deserves to be seen, heard, and cared for.

We're in this together. And together, we can make sure IL-15 finally has a representative who shows up, speaks out, and fights for us.

Let's keep going. Together, we can be the difference.
